Since'the above machine was put up, the Gailego Mills have been burnt and rebuilt again, since which time they have been using Messrs. W. P. Springer & Co.'s Machines from Oswego, and Leonard Smith's from Troy. N. Y. but have recently come back to ours again, taving ordered two of our largest size this season. May 16, 1259.

Blacoskiryn, Nov. 10, 1243.

It have used one of F. Harris & Sons Stone Senti Machines for the last four years, and I am well satisfied that It is a mill of superior order for cleaning Wheat. The one I have used will polish over 106 bushels per hour; is easily kept in repair, and durable. Upon the whole I consider I the best mill I ever used, and requiring only the usual power to drive it.

Mr. Payne had in two of Leonard Smith's Machines provious to sing ours.

The following is an answer to a few lines addressed to Alexader Ray & Brother, in regard to J. Johnson's Machines, he baving intimated that his was preferred and ours turned out.

The following is an answer to a few lines addressed to Alexander Ray & Brother. In regard to J Johnson's Macilines, he having infinited that his was preferred and ours turned out.

GENTS—Your favor of the 10th link, is received. You have been misinformed that we have smoothed Mr. Johnson's Smit Machine in place of yours. We are running Mr. J's machine, but never had the least idea of throwing out yours, on the contrary it gives in entire satisfaction, and we consider it the less machine we have ever see.

Most respectfully.

A. ROSS RAY & BRO. Introduced Mr. Johnson's Ministration of Ministration and the contrary of the State of the Contrary of Ministration of Ministration of Ministration of Sean Mills. I have also W. P. used Springer's, Leonard Smith's, and other metal machines, but have found none to equal yours for cleaning and scouring grain, and after an experience of eighteen years in the milling business, both in England and the United States, have no bestandon in pronouncing your machines the best and most durable if ever saw.

GEORGE STANFORD.

CHELSEA MILLS, New York, Oct. 1, 1850.

Messars Harris & Sons—Gents. Previous to the introduction of your Smit Machines in our mill, we used one of Mr. Southworth's, one of Mr. Groot's, and one of Mr. Syringer's from Oswego, and after a fair and theorough trial, have no hestiation in saying that we consider your machine the best we ever used, and cheerfully recommend them to military generally as a durable and soperior machine for cleaning and securing grain.

JOHN P. & THOMAS CUMMINGS.

Messas, Harris & Sons—Gents. We have had in use one of Mr. Leonard Smith's Smut Machines of Troy, N. Y. but as it does not answer the purposes recommended, although we have bought and paid for it we are now taking it out, and wish you to put up one of your Smuthers, as soon as possible, at our mile, Nos. 362 and 303 West-Twenty-seventhes.

Yours, respectfully.

The greatest fault we find with Smith's Machine is that it breaks the grain in cleaning.

Hear what the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin says of itHorac Tsimpleton, by Charles Lever, the author of "O'Malley," has been on our table for some days. This is one of the lest nowle of that fertile and graphic writer. The four is less rollishing than in some of his earlier novale, but then it is also more chaste, while a tree of philosophy rins, through the book which elevates it high above its prediscessors. Several historical personages figure in the volume. Two or three charming episodes also add to the interest of the work. On the whole, we consider this, in many respects, the best of Lever's fictions; sut in the opinion, we are glad to see, we are backed by the more critical perton of the American and English press.
